

Have got / haven't got / has got / hasn't got third person singular (he/she/it) = has got.

Example:

I have got a laptop.            I haven't got a computer.
She has got two sisters.      She hasn't got two brothers.

Fill in the correct form of have:

Have you got a car? Yes, I have.

Has Tanja got a car? No, she hasn't,
but I have got a new one.

Has Toni got a book? Yes, he has.

They have a big house in the mountains.

Have you got any cigars? No, I haven't,
but my dad has some cigars.

Has your friend got any cigars? No, he hasn't.

Has Peter got any cards? Yes, he has.

David has got a new computer.

My parents have got a new TV.

Have you got a dictionary? No, I haven't,
but my sister has one.

Have your friends got a dictionary? Yes, Toni has one.

You're lucky, you have got a cat.

I have got a new game, it was very expensive.

Have they got the same game? No, they have a different game.

Yes, we have got a car for you, but we haven't got a Rolls Royce.